DEATH PENALTY

THE DEATH PENALTY

God created everything that exists (Genesis. 1:1; John 1:3), all of which shows His glory (Psalms. 19:1). He is holy (Isaiah. 63; Revelation. 15:4), righteous (Psalms. 145:17), and perfect (Deuteronomy. 32:4; Matthew. 5:48). Since God is the Creator of all, and is holy, righteous and perfect, it is understandable then that He should hate sin and the curse, which it has brought on His creation.

Sin, simply put, is trespassing against God regardless of the act or by whom committed. The act, which introduced sin into the world, was not murder, rape, stealing, abortion, adultery, homosexuality, child molesting or any other gross deed, all of which are sin. The act, which brought sin into the world, was that of disobedience. It was Adam who disobeyed God by eating of the tree of knowledge of good and evil in the garden eastward in Eden (Genesis. 3). This one sin committed by Adam, brought upon all of mankind a sin nature and a curse, the result of which is death—that is, physical death and eternal separation from God, and damnation in Hell (Romans. 5:12; Revelation. 21:8). Because God is holy and righteous, He must punish sinful man. But God, in His love for the eternal souls of men, made a provision whereby he could escape an eternal Hell. The escape came in the person of God's Son Jesus Christ, who as our substitute, bore in His own body on the Cross of Calvary, the penalty for our sins by shedding His blood and dying (Isaiah. 53; Hebrews. 9; 10:12). He was buried and three days later was bodily raised from the grave by God the Father (Acts 2:23;24; 3:14,15; 10:39,40).

Just as the sin of disobedience by Adam brought the curse of death (physical and spiritual) to all of mankind, so too, the death of Christ as full and final payment makes salvation and eternal life possible for all who accept Jesus Christ as personal Saviour (Romans.. 6:23; I John 2:2).
